

Law Library Annual Report - Fiscal Year 2014-2015

Executive Summary (1)

The mission of the Law Library is to meet both the curricular and research informational needs of the College's faculty and students. The Law Library achieves this goal through the acquisition, development, and maintenance of a carefully selected collection of traditional print and electronic resources and a proactive program of delivering meaningful access to these collections. The technical services law library faculty and support staff concentrate on the acquisition, maintenance, and generalized access to those collections. The public services law library faculty and support staff provides the more particularized interface to those collections by providing the necessary human interface in meeting the specific informational needs of faculty and students. While some of these goals can be directly measured, many of these objectives cannot be directly quantified (See Key Performance Indicators attached as Appendix A).

Staffing (2)

The staff headcount at the end of FY 15 is 4: Steve Grant, Margaret Johnson, Ana Korec, & Hiram Molina. The faculty headcount at the end of FY15 is 4: Brian Barnes, Brian Huddleston, Michele Pope, & Catherine Wagar.

In 2014-15 one person joined and two people left the Loyola New Orleans Law Library staff. In January of 2015 Rebecca Nunn resigned after nine years from the position of Bindery Assistant. The title and position of Bindery Assistant was somewhat outdated and the primary part of this position was at the time of the resignation reconciliation and paying of invoices. After Ms. Nunn left Zanada Joyner, the Reference Associate, had her non-reference tasks reassigned to assist with billing processing in the ILS and fill this void. This task was primarily done by Linda Wilder in previous years before Ms. Wilder's retirement in July of 2013. Nunn's other tasks were divided among the remainder of the library faculty and staff with some tasks such as bindery going to librarian Catherine Wagar, some tasks going to librarian Michele Pope, some tasks being done by Interim Director Brian Barnes, and other tasks being done by the circulation staff members.

On June 1, 2015, Ana Korec began working in the Law Library as Access Services Coordinator. The position of Access Services Coordinator is a new position to the Loyola Law Library that was created in an effort to improve services for students and to fill the void of paying and reconciling invoices left when Ms. Nunn left five months previous. This position is in many ways a hybrid of Ms. Nunn's position and the position of Circulation Supervisor that had been vacant for almost 18 months since Rosetta Francois left the law library. In addition to handling invoices, Ms. Korec coordinates all activities in what has been known as the circulation department. While there is no official name change for the department roles of the staff in this area continue to evolve and the moniker of Circulation Department minimizes the many things the staff do regarding bindery and former tech services actions on a daily basis.

On June 18, 2015 Zanada Joyner resigned as Reference Associate to become the Research and Instructional Services Librarian at the University of Georgia Law Library. This position remained unfilled until early into the fall semester of 2015. During the time between Ana Korec's arrival and Zanada Joyner's departure the law library was able to transition the invoice handling process with minimal issues.

Brian Barnes, formerly Deputy Director, is still serving as acting as Interim Law Library Director. There appears to be no attempt by the administration to look for a permanent director or to replace the spot left vacant in the deputy position when Prof. Barnes became Interim Director. In April and May of 2015 a movement at the law school led to the proposal and passage of a motion before the Law School Ordinary Faculty in the May meeting that the Interim Director of the Law Library is now able to have a vote in faculty meetings, even if a member of the law library faculty and not the ordinary faculty, on all items except for ordinary faculty rank and tenure decisions. This movement was supported by all the law library faculty members as well.

Goals for the Current Academic Year (3)

The majority of activities in an academic law library are ongoing in nature. Cataloging and bindery statistics for the past fiscal year are included as Appendix E. These continuing law library activities include:

Ongoing Initiatives and Developments FY 2014-15

- Selection and acquisition of traditional and print library resources
- Processing, maintenance, and binding of hard-copy library resources
- Cataloging and indexing of traditional and electronic library resources
- Circulation control of monographic and reserve materials
- Ready-reference and in-depth reference services to students and faculty
- Informal and formal bibliographic instruction in the use of traditional print and on-line resources
- Continued improvements of the student lounge in the law library including installation of a television and painting of the walls.
- Continue to develop a more "student friendly" atmosphere
- Continue to improve student experience in the computer labs
- Continued staff cross-training
- In the Fall of 2014 the Interim Director, in conjunction with the other librarians, rewrote the Law Library Collection Development Plan to better reflect the current trend of electronic over print resources and the cutbacks the library has sustained since the implementation of the previous plan. This plan was later submitted to and agreed to by the Law School Library and Technology Committee.
- In the Fall of 2014 the law library began a specific replacement cycle plan for library office computers. All computers, both lab and non-lab computers, were inventoried and a plan developed in conjunction with Paula Ruiz of IT to create a replacement cycle to maintain adequate equipment while not having to replace all library machines in the same fiscal cycle.
- In the Fall of 2014 the law library was used fairly extensively for filming of the Loyola Law admissions and advertising video that also coincided with the Law School's centennial celebration.

Law Library Collection

As in past years the library continued the trend of resource cancellation in an effort to combat previous budgetary decreases and increasing costs. Appendix B contains a cancellation list that runs from February 2015 to February 2016. Cancellation of subscriptions by their nature do not match up well to fiscal years as the cancellation is often told to the vendor but not effective until the following year. Appendix B will, at a minimum, provide some listing of the titles that have been cancelled.

Monographic and treatise orders remained at low levels (similar to the previous year) and it is anticipated to remain in this status. Monographic purchases are primarily selected via specific request from faculty, via package plan, or limited selection by the library director. Faculty request for items were generally honored and key monographs and treaties were purchased.

Law Library Budget for Current Academic Year (4)

The Law Library budget was very stable regarding the staffing and operations budgets. In FY15 staffing expenses were $493,928 as compared to FY 14 with staffing expenses of $483,820.¹ Additionally, $1,021,351 was spent on the law library operations budget (including materials collection) in FY15.² Comparatively $1,054,988 was spent in FY14.³ An end of year status report for the Acquisitions Budget has been attached as Appendix C. Appendix D is a similar report on the Law Library's Operating Expenses.

The largest (non-book) operations expense was paying the second half of the III upgrade that was implemented in FY14 with $89,272 being attributed to computer maintenance object code. Book and Materials expenditures for FY15 totaled $850,515.

Budgetary Needs for the Upcoming and Future Fiscal Years

After several years of cancellations and shrinking staff and collections the library simply desires a static funding base much like what occurred from FY14 to FY15. If possible the library would prefer to hire another librarian to fill staffing needs even if that salary would be taken out of operations. Additionally, the library continues to shift resources from print only to print and electronic or electronic only.

This report, again, notes that if university equity adjustments are opened to librarians this coming academic year (as they were to law ordinary faculty three years prior) librarians who are at relatively low comparative salaries should be considered for such adjustment.

Assessment Report / SLO / Program Outcomes (5)

The assessment of outcomes in some numerical or external capacity can prove difficult but some examples do exist.

- In Spring of 2015 the Law Library surveyed the student body using Survey Monkey with a 20 question survey with topics including hours of operation, assessment of reference opportunities, and items that are obstacles to more library use by the patron. The results from this survey show a large percentage of satisfied users and we have taken much of the feedback and attempted to reshape certain library items as a result. This survey and its results are included as Appendix G.

³ These numbers are as reflected in FRS.

- In December of 2014 the Law Library received its Public Access Assessment Report from the U.S. Government Printing Office. This examination was performed as part of the library's federal depository status. In short the report indicated "The library is a very well run depository library with a strong service commitment". The report is included as Appendix H.

Summary of Achievements (6)

- The Law Library purchased more resources that have perpetual access instead of a purely annual subscription.
- The Law Library created a student lounge in the first floor of the law library reading room from a former storage area.
- The Law Library took over the Westerfield Fellows space, using as additional study rooms, a meeting rooms for adjunct faculty, a meeting room of International Programs, and storage for the law clinic.
- The Law Library took over the "Suits for Students" program when there was no one else at Loyola Law to do so; it is currently housed in the office off the Sakla Computer Lab.
- The Law Library purchased more white boards and lecterns to be placed in library study rooms.
- The Law Library joined the LaLink/LOUIS Consortium.
