 - Saturday, February 11 - Food Law and Policy Skills Course
 - Room 111 from 9AM-12PM
 - This course will provide an overview of what food law is and how it has been imperative in the formulation of law and policy in the US generally, but Louisiana specifically. Food, in all of its industry iterations have been at the center of legal arguments ranging from acquisition to workers' rights. Fights over food, food security, food safety, and food access have traditionally been fought in courts that only consider food an ancillary component of the argument. Through this course, you will come to understand that food is the fight and it is predominately a social justice one.
 - There have been reports that the Student Org office codes are not working.
 - An email will be sent out to Student Orgs addressing this and providing the proper codes.
- Closing
 - Next Meeting – March 1, 2017, 5pm LS 308

Approved: 1/10/2017
